As part of the upcoming community Centennial celebration the Powell Police Department is seeking information regarding the history of the department. "Part of the community celebration will be looking back at those who have protected and served the community over the first 100 years", said Chief Tim Feathers. The Powell Health and Safety Fair on April 4, 2009 will feature displays and tributes to Powell Police, Fire and EMS who have served to protect Powell and its people. In preparation for this event the Powell Police are looking for past employees or their family members who may have information regarding the police department, its employees or its operations over the years. The Department is particularly seeking to locate family members of Powell Town Marshal Charles Lewis who was killed in the line of duty on March 16, 1939. In addition they are seeking historic photographs, news stories and memorabilia to incorporate into displays. The Powell Police are asking anyone who may be able to help prepare for this important celebration to call them at 754-2212. Officer Matt Brilakis and Dispatcher Emily Considine are coordinating the effort to gather information. They can be reached through e-mail also at mbrilakis@cityofpowell.com or econsidine@cityofpowell.com.
